

IST115W : Object Oriented Programming

Object Oriented Programming expands a student's knowledge of the structure and flow of object-oriented programming. Students learn more involved aspects such as inheritance, polymorphism, and encapsulation. By the end of the course, students have gained the skills and knowledge necessary to create robust, efficient, and maintainable programs using object-oriented programming principles.

Lecture Hours 3

Lab Hours 2 Credits 4

Prerequisites

IST125W